

Juniors Will Be Hosts to Seniors Tomorrow Night

Annual Prom to Have College of Musical Knowledge as Theme

"That's right, you're wrong," the Old Professor will be heard to exclaim many times during the evening tomorrow when the Juniors in the College will be hosts to the Seniors at the annual formal Junior-Senior Prom.

The Old West Library will be converted into a veritable "College of Musical Knowledge" in which Professor Kay Kyser, dressed in his traditional cap and gown, will call the school session at 9 p. m. and conduct the activities and questioning during the evening until 1 p. m.

Also arrayed in the academic cap and gown will be the members of the College dance orchestra, who will furnish the music for dancing and also for the professor's musical questioning.

A "Knowledge Theme"

The walls of the "College of Musical Knowledge" will be decked with music staffs and notes, and the lights will be covered by academic caps. The green and white dance programs will portray two graduates sliding down a diploma, and in the corner will be the Missouri state seal.

Those who have been invited to be honor students in the "College of Musical Knowledge" are: President and Mrs. Uel W. Lamkin, Dean and Mrs. J. W. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Klempf, Mr. and Mrs. Norval Sawyer, Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Wright, and Mr. J. L. Zwingle and guest, Mr. H. G. Wales, former instructor in the College, and Mrs. Wales have been invited as additional guests.

Bashful Suitor Meets Troubles

Students Present Play in Assembly

That wasn't a quarrel between two mortal enemies whose expletives filled the auditorium last Wednesday morning; it was just a prearranged discussion between lovers, with the father coming in for a good deal of the abuse.

An unfortunate young man, unable to lay his suit at the feet of his beloved in an intelligible manner, could not extricate himself from the rashness of his own temper and it took two hysterical fits and one fainting spell to tell the original purpose of a visit to the house of the father-in-law, a marriage proposal.

Students of the speech department under the direction of Godfrey Hochbaum presented a one-act play, "The Marriage Proposal," by Anton Chekhov, during the regular assembly period last Wednesday morning. Rollicking humor constituted the essence of the broad farcical comedy which had as its background Russian peasant-life before the World War.

The cast of three included Werner Herz as Ivan Ivanovitch Lomov, the bashful suitor; Margaret Kyle as Natalya Stepanovna, the object of his love who realizes the purpose of his visit just in time; and Glade Bilby, the much-plagued father-in-law.

I was very mature at the date of my birth, I had as many teeth as grandpa, could walk as good as grandpa, and had as much hair as dad.

Alumni Banquet Will Be Held on Monday, May 20

Husbands or Wives of Alumni Are Welcome to Commencement Feature

Members of the Class of 1940 and all other College Alumni who plan to attend the annual Alumni Banquet should keep the date of May 20 open, for the banquet will be held on the evening of that date, at 6:30 p. m. The banquet will be given at Residence Hall, the Monday night preceding commencement, one day earlier than usual.

A general committee appointed by Louise Bauer-Miller, president of the Alumni Association, is now at work on arrangements for the affair, which, it is hoped, will be one of the finest of its kind in recent years. Mildred French vice-president of the association, is chairman of the committee. Other members are Miss Lucille Brumbaugh, of the College faculty, and Mrs. Norval Sawyer, wife of the chairman of the department of mathematics at the College.

Stress Two Points
The committee is stressing two points in regard to the banquet this year. One of these points is that

Mr. A. H. (Bert) Cooper
Cor. Sec., Alumni Association
State Teachers College

persons attending the banquet may dress informally or formally, as they choose. The other is that husbands or wives of Alumni members are welcome even though they are not members of the Association.

Another interesting feature of the banquet will be the reception committee, composed largely of faculty members who have a wide acquaintance among the Alumni, which will be on hand to greet the guests.

Four classes will be honored at this year's banquet. The classes to be honored will include, besides the class of 1940, the classes of 1910, 1920, and 1930.

Reservations for the banquet may be made through Mr. A. H. Cooper, corresponding secretary of the alumni association, at the College, at the nominal cost of seventy-five cents. Reservations should be made in advance in order that adequate accommodations may be provided.

College Dancers to Make Appearance on Auditorium Stage Tonight in Third Annual Dance Club Recital

With more elaborate costuming and choreography than ever before, the College Dance Club will present their third annual Spring Recital on the auditorium stage at eight o'clock tonight.

This year the girls have been working on the dances since early in the fall, the costumes have been ready for weeks, and the more than forty members are ready for their curtain rise at eight o'clock tonight.

The first series of numbers will deal with the folk songs of several nations. The Highland Fling, old Scottish victory dance, will initiate the program with vim and vigor which will permeate the remainder of the evening.

The Highland Fling was originated among the warring tribes of Scottish Highlanders to celebrate an individual or a mass victory. At the time, the victory was heralded by the victor taking the sword of the vanquished. This he kept as a token of his prowess and carried home with him at the end of the campaign. Then each man who had won a sword in battle would cross it with his own sword and stick them up in the ground. With the crossed swords as a pivot he dances the dance of victory. However, this dance of victory might become a tragedy, for the slightest misstep would cast him upon the swords and result in death or injury. Therefore, this dance is noticeable for the precision of the dancers in the execution of the difficult steps and balances.

The Irish Jig shows the contrast of the minuet step or the promenade and the rollicking Irish Jig which is known the world over. The contrast of these steps makes the dance a laugh provoker and one in which the audience will feel an urge to join.

The Russian Mazurka, probably the most difficult, technically, of the folk dances, indicates the military trend of the Russians in their choreography. The famous Russian tallcocks will be exhibited as well as the Russian clock.

Several solos will be danced showing the different moods of the eternal feminine nature. Gladys Miller will dance "Nativete," Vida Bernau, "Irritation," and Helen Johnson, "Vanite."

Death will take the stage as fifteen of the members show, through the medium of the dance, the agonies of the mourners of the dead. Following the chorus number, the part of Death himself will be danced by Martha Harmon. An adagio team, Helen Johnson and Stanley Pele, will dance Life and Death, and the chorus will close the number.

The "Pelée de resistance" of the program is the Negroid Suite in which the dancers show the negro from the time of his primitive life in the jungle through his days of back-breaking labor in the cotton field, his awe, still primitive religion, his crude laughter and gaiety in leisure hours, his driving fear of "Old Man River," and his terrible struggle against the bonds of slavery. The Emancipator brings him release from his awful bondage and the negro is freed.

At a preview of the recital which was given last week for President and Mrs. Lamkin and Dean and Mrs. Jones, the negro number was the one which they chose as being the best of the whole group. So impressed were they by the sight of forty girls working without credit or any remuneration, that they very generously offered to furnish refreshment for the whole troupe of dancers. President Lamkin will furnish cokes to the group on the night of the recital and Dean Jones on the night of dress rehearsal.

Margaret Kyle will dance the role of the Emancipator in the Negroid Suite and Harriet Harvey will dance "Savage" to the accompaniment of a verse choir of male voices.

The final number will be the brilliant, flashing "Fiesta" a group of the native dances of Spain, danced in beautiful costumes of every imaginable hue. Helen Vincent will dance the traditional Spanish "Hat Dance" and Frank Baker and Gladys Miller will present "Bolero." Fifteen couples, with the three soloists, will close the program with "Rumba."

The public is invited to this performance which will culminate a year's effort on the part of the College Dance Club.

ACE CO-EDS WORK VARIOUS WAYS TO EARN ONE DOLLAR

"Hello? Hello? Is this the Association for Childhood Education? I send your ad in the paper stating that you want work on Saturday. I could give two women a job washing woodwork."

A short telephone conversation and two ACE women had a chance to earn a dollar each to be contributed to the coffers of the club. The organization had run an ad for work with the result that the ACE members were realizing their opportunity.

'Work Day' has become a tradition with the ACE. On one Saturday every year each member of the organization works to earn a dollar which she has pledged. As the project is unique in that there are no similar plans on the campus, the women claimed the center of attention in their scramble for jobs.

Scrubs Four Hours
The recipients of the job which resulted from the telephone conversation were Betty McGee and Jane Warren. The scrubbed woodwork from 9:30 in the morning until 1:30 in the afternoon. Each woman got her luncheon and one dollar, plus a huge strawberry shortcake.

Two other women, June Funk and Effie Mae Patterson, sold popcorn at Residence Hall. Ruth White pressed clothes for her dollar. Irene Bohnschneider shoes. Another group worked all day at the five and ten cent store.

Those who did not find jobs contributed a dollar to the treasury. The result was a considerable rise in the ACE coffers, and a trip to Milwaukee for the annual ACE convention.

Nyda Snyder and Jean Zimmerman established a beauty shop at Residence Hall where they gave their friends shampoos, facials, and manicures. Mary Jeanette Anthony washed her father's car. Others

Beloved Cow and Horse Stray, Are Killed

(By the Night Reporter)

Two valued members of the community who have contributed in a great measure to the well-being of the student body met with accidental death last week, when a night freight train ran over Bess, a gray mare, and a nameless cow who had gone astray from the College farm in the dark.

With infinite regret, College authorities announced the death due to fatal injuries of the two animals who had fallen prey to the over-crowded traffic problem at the College. The accident mars the perfect safety record which the faculty as well as the student body have striven to preserve during the last two weeks.

As workers approached the buildings of the College farm early last Saturday morning, they found the body of Bess who had apparently dragged herself to the barn after being struck by the engine. An autopsy by the College veterinarian disclosed internal injuries as the cause of her death.

In the meanwhile, Andrew Woods, College dairyman, disquieted by the absence of one of his charges, had issued a frenzied call for help. Search parties were dispatched in several directions and soon returned with the sad news. The body of the heifer was found lying across the railroad tracks, dreadfully mangled, her longing eyes still betraying the curiosity which had prompted her to set out in search of adventure.

"A Good Helper"

"She was a good helper, she was," Andrew told a Missourian reporter, as tears trickled down his cheeks. "She was so sweet and tractable, always at her best behavior," he continued as his remark was corroborated by the testimony of his fellow-workers. He could not be separated from the body, but looked at her again and again, caressing her soft skin and awaiting in vain that soft "moo" which had so often interrupted his tiresome labor.

A group of men was assembled around the dead Bess and listened religiously to the eulogy delivered by Mr. Wright over her dead body. "She was so distinctly human," he told the reporter. "Sometimes, when I had lost my temper and used abusive language, she would slowly turn around and look reproachfully into my eyes." With these words he collapsed from a nervous breakdown and had to be treated on the spot.

Notables Send Wreaths

The funeral had been set for Monday afternoon. Andrew Woods took over the deathwatch and Earl Brindle and Steve Lewis were appointed guards of honor. All day, letters of condolence poured in from students and sympathetic townspeople. Wreaths had been sent by President Uel W. Lamkin, Governor Stark, Senator Clark, Mr. T. C. Reid, the Chamber of Commerce, the Association of Dairy-farmers and numerous other organizations.

Among the pallbearers clad in somber black were Al Madden and Jack Haffner whose faces were torn in agony. As the funeral procession slowly moved towards the grave dug by Wilbur Fulkerson, the Girls' Triple Trio under the direction of Miss Marian Kerr sang Bach's "Merrily I Step Into My Grave", and Margaret Kyle, representing the speech department, recited Shelley's "I Weep for Adonais; He Is Dead". Mr. Wright, chairman of the department of agriculture, in delivering the funeral sermon, touched upon the brief life history of the two animals, cut short by the unfortunate accident. Towards the end, the congregation dispersed with sorrow in their hearts and tears in the corners of their eyes.

The more we think the more we know, and the more we know, the more we can do about injustices all over the world. There are injustices in our own backyard. If we only will think, think carefully, and then act as our thinking decrees is best, we can do our small bit to eradicate some of the many troubles in this world of ours.

Therefore, students of this College, and of every other college; don't be afraid to be radical as long as you know why you are radical and feel that you are right.

"Confucius Say": W. A. A. had formal banquet April 26 at Country Club, and highest awards ever made to women athletes on the campus were awarded to two members.

A Chinese theme was carried out in decorations and entertainment at the banquet at which Miss Miriam Waggoner, chairman of the physical education department and sponsor of W. A. A., made the awards for the year.

Marianna Obermiller and Gladys Miller, senior members, received plaques for the 2,500 points which they have earned in athletic activities during the years that they have been members. Similar awards have been made only twice before: to Miss Jessie - Jutten and Miss Anita Aldrich, both former presidents of W. A. A.

The second highest award was made to Mary Frances Barrock, this year's president of the organization, who received a school sweater for the 1,500 points made. Irene Bohlenbust and Vida Bernau were awarded school jackets for 1,000 points made in athletic activities.

School letters, which are awarded to those who have earned 500 points, were awarded to Vida Bernau and Martha Miner.

Entrance to the banquet hall was between two totem poles. Tables radiating from a totem pole in the center were decorated to represent a miniature Chinese garden. Each table had a Chinese house as a centerpiece with torti gards and popples on either side. Chop sticks were provided each guest.

Place cards were tiny umbrellas, and the programs were in the shape of Chinese lanterns. Lighted Chinese lanterns hung overhead. The corners of the room were decorated with pagodas, and the foliage, which was in various places over the room, gave it the appearance of a large garden.

Marianna Obermiller acting in the capacity of Confucius was toastmistress for the evening. Speeches were made by Mary Frances Barrock, president, and Gladys Miller, vice-president; and by the managers of the sports seasons of the year: Irene Bohlenbust, Lucille Shisler, and Martha Miner, who gave recitations of their respective seasons.

Entertainment of a solo, "On the Road to Singapore," by Connie Jones, and a tap dance, by Jean Harazim, were given between courses.

Melodious Notes Reechoing in Halls Not Always Produce Desired Effect

Saga of Visitor Who Met With Accident Is Finally Revealed

(With Apologies to The Music Department.)

By Werner Herz

Once upon a time, not so many weeks ago, there was a man, unable to satisfy his curiosity, who, being eager to investigate the state of higher education in the state of Missouri, rashly and imprudently resolved upon the very dangerous plan of visiting this College.

He arrived and upon being shown around, found everything to his satisfaction. But as he was extremely curious and desirous of investigating the state of higher education in the state of Missouri, he wished to attend some classes in order to convince himself of the correct application of his tax money.

He had seated himself in the class room and his eyes and ears hung upon the lips of the instructor, betraying the blissful attitude of a man who does not have to remember the subject matter.

An Earth Tremor

Suddenly, his attention was disturbed by a slight tremor of the boards beneath him. A low grumbling emanating from the earth's entrails filled the air and then, a sudden violent eruption as if the ground had rent asunder. The walls shook, the windows rattled, the floor heaved like the raging billows of the ocean in a hurricane, deafening thunder burst his eardrums and heart-rending shrieks pierced the air.

Fancying an earthquake to have visited these regions of Missouri, the visitor, fearful of being buried under the crashing beams and tons of brick of the Administration Building, rushed to the window. In his haste he did not notice that the students had remained seated with perfect composure, scribbling their notes and reading their assignments, but broke through the window pane and plunged to his doom that awaited him on the concrete walk.

Musicians Are Conservative

Unfortunate man! Like so many others, he had been deluded by the aspect of things which are not what they seem. It had merely been the College band warming up for practice under the faithful direction of Mr. John Geiger, and in his nervous mind, the victim, already strung by the day's experiences, had infinitely multiplied the sweet harmonies waiting up from the music room.

Scientists assure us that brass as a metal has definitely outlived its usefulness to mankind and advocate that it should be replaced by more modern alloys. Unfortunately, musicians are notoriously conservative and cannot be induced to adopt the same view.

To them brass is one of the dearest things on earth and has taken the place of a pet in their hearts.

Hugging and petting it is their favorite pastime, and when the poor creature utters doleful wails and cries, they reveal their sadistic tendencies by being wonderfully pleased.

The Halls Resound

The halls of the Administration Building re-echo with the moans of these unfortunate creatures. With the exception of Sunday, when the tormentors rest from their labors, these wails pierce the walls of the torture-chambers and hourly transfix the ears of the miserable listeners. To the sociologist and philosopher, in innate cruelty of man becomes apparent at once.

The shrill shriek of the trumpet and the low sigh of the trombone shake the fortitude of the bravest athlete whiling his time away in the corridor. The sufferings of the inanimate brass instruments are climaxed in a high-pitched moan and only end when they have given up their ghost and are being put back into their coffins.

How sweetly and softly the low notes of the French horn and the high cries of pain of the cornet penetrate the ear-drums! The coughing and spluttering of the horn, however, is nothing if compared to the melodious, ear-splitting triumph song of the cornet, that racks the brain and burns its way through the innermost cells of grey matter. And, as if these solitary voices in the wilderness of Maryville were not sufficiently delectable to the auditory sense, they combine in exuberant dissonances, in shrieking howls of delight in order to satisfy the taste of the music lover.

Storms of Music

The hellish chorus is augmented by the woodwind instruments. Of these auxiliaries, by far the most powerful is the clarinet which storms to the attack, squalling like a pig when it is being dragged to the slaughter. The low grunts of the bassoon second its squeaking and the nasal monotone of the oboe, particularly if it is played: solo, serves to enhance the pleasure of an hour that originally should have been devoted to serious study. Its real beauty, however, cannot be appreciated unless it cheer up at least one hour while a difficult mathematical problem awaits its solution.

The serious and tragic consequences of the problems brass and wood have created for highly nervous modern man have been related and pointed out above. It remains to be considered whether action be undertaken in this matter with any prospect of success. Appeals to the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Brass and Wood Instruments have been in vain and it is doubtful whether—that is that terrible noise outside? Oh, I see, it is just Marvin Mothershead, warming up for his daily "Vagaries on a Trumpet Through the Realm of Music."

Resident Training Center Looks Back Upon Two Years of Struggle and Progress This Quarter

Tonight the men living at the Quad are giving an invitation dance in honor of the two years progress which the Resident Training Center is just about to complete. Having this time the enrollees have had dinners, parties, and picture shows, but tonight's dance, which will be in both rooms of the old library, will be a milestone in the events of the project.

Shown above is the emblem of the Resident Training Center which was used on the yearbook of the project as it was published last spring. As suggested, the emblem stands for youth, work, and education.

One of the first projects of its kind to be established in the country, it is unique in that young men are given the opportunity to work and, at the same time, a chance to attend college classes.

Although construction of the Quad with its dormitories and dining hall has been the main purpose of the project, other types of work are also being done. At the present time the young men work in offices, in the industrial arts building, in the gymnasium, with the College carpenter, with the College electrician, on the campus grounds, in the College garage, with the College painter, and in the library. A co-operative laundry unit was established as one of the first features of the project, and several of the men work there.

About 85 Young Men That youth welcomed an opportunity to enter the project may be seen from the fact that within the first month of operation 1600 applications were filed for the 110 openings which the project could offer. During the past year there have been about eighty-five enrollees on the project.

Several of the youths have established names both for themselves, as well as fame for the project. At various times during the two years which the project has been in operation they have served as class officers, members of the Student Senate, officers in the YMCA, officers in the Social Science-International Relations Club, officers on the College paper; they have printed their own yearbook, and have established their own council with its constitution, which is recognized as a regular campus organization. During the winter quarter, twenty-nine honor grades were earned by the eighty-six enrolled on the project at that time.

A Worth While Project The general feeling toward the project is one of appreciation in that it has provided a way and means of extending a college education to youths who would otherwise be denied this privilege.

Through these two years of college work the men have come to realize the importance of a College experience as a balance in world-wide thinking and making a living. The desire of the men is to see the project continue, thus providing a means of education to those that would otherwise be deprived of it. According to the work supervisors, most of the men are interested in their work and appreciate the experience they are getting.

They are members of Falkirk House, the first U. C. L. A. married students' cooperative dormitory. By pooling domestic arrangements their savings run from $15 to $20 a month.

Falkirk House got its start last September when Lee Sterling Christie, a junior student, wanted to get married. He didn't know whether or not his finances would stand the strain, but he recognized that his problem was not unique. If he could find several other married couples, they could organize a cooperative dormitory.

Four Couples He found them all right—three other couples, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Canham, Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Mayfield, Mr. and Mrs. H. Leffert. They rented a two-story stucco house near the campus. The men do the heavy work around the house and yard while the women do the cooking and cleaning. All food is purchased through the U. C. L. A. Cooperative Housing Association. The cost of cooperative living is about $48 per couple each month.

Senate Draws Up Oath for Newly-Elected Members

Following a resolution which empowered it to draw up an oath of office for all incoming senators and senate members, the Student Senate at its meeting last week provided for the following oath which every senator and senate officer must take before entering upon the duties of his office:

"I do solemnly swear or affirm that I will support the Constitution of the Student Government Association of the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College and faithfully perform the duties of my office; that I will attend all meetings of the Student Senate unless, for some just reason, it is impossible for me to do so; that I will not knowingly give precedence to the interests of one, person or campus organization over another when such matters come under the jurisdiction of the Student Senate, but that I will work for the general welfare of all members of the Student Government Association."

The oath will be administered to incoming members and officers by the president of the Student Government Association, or the presiding officer of the meeting at the time the new Senate and officers are installed.

Diamond Practice Will Start Soon

Coach Ryland Milner announced this week that spring baseball practice will start as soon as the diamond is in shape. No definite schedule has been arranged yet, but the Bearcats are expected to play four or five games.

Coach Milner said that open competition will be held for positions on the team for about a week and after that inter-collegiate competition will begin.

Varsity Villagers Have Formal Dance

Eight pastel shades were used in the nosegays which were suspended from streamers on the ceiling, chandeliers, nosegays, and the spring flowers which formed the decorations for the annual Varsity Villagers spring formal dance held April 26 at the Country Club.

The dance programs contained tiny nosegays of yarn flowers. The floor show consisted of a scarf dance by Jo Nell Watts, Martha Harmon, Conith Arnold, and Mary Frances Barrock, and an exhibition waltz by Helen Johnson and Ed Clemenson.

The College dance band furnished the music for dancing, and Mary Ellen Hamilton was featured soloist. Marian Davis was the general chairman in charge of the arrangements.
